

CONSTRUCTION

In many communities, construction is the heartbeat of the area and a certain economic indicator. The construction industry faces constant pressures from finding skilled labor, federal safety and health oversight; ever-changing compliance to city, county, and state codes and regulations; and continuous risk management under economic conditions. We have dedicated professionals specializing in the construction trades and numerous clients representing the gamut of the construction industry. Many clients realize significant cash flow and savings benefit just by reclassifying project related costs.
